SHOALHAVEN.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

The attendance was very good, and the bidding of Ferrara, took place on Saturday, 20th. The attendance was very good, and the bidding was very satisfactory—somewhat less than the previous year, and realizing nearly $300. The sale also brought in a very successful customer, Mr. H. O. Morton, who acquired to himself well, and was a great acquisition to the district, he being quite conversant with all matters. A sale of a second portion of the same town, Lot 1, 37 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 2, 34 perches, ditto, $48; Lot 3, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 4, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 5, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 6, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 7, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 8, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 9, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 10, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 11, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 12, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 13, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 14, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 15, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 16, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 17, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 18, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 19, 34 perches, ditto, $40; Lot 20, 34 perches, ditto, $40.

THE BRIGHTON STEAMER.
To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.
 Sir,—May I ask a few lines of space for your indulgent attention to a notice which I have the honor to address to the owners of the Brighton (Manly Beach) steamer?
 Under the present arrangements of the Plimton steamer starting from Woolloomooloo pier, it is the means of conveying any residents of the northern end of the city from participation in the enjoyment of an early trip. I would suggest that a steamer on the Circular Quay at 7 a.m. (prompt), and call in at Woolloomooloo, for passengers only; and on her return, land them at the Circular Quay as near 9 o'clock as possible. This would be well, also, to adopt the plan in operation last summer, that is,—of stopping here there and back for passengers not leaving the boat. The Circular Quay would be the most convenient, for many reasons, as nearly all the early passengers are in some way or other connected with, or have business in, the city.
 The writer hopes these suggestions will be views of the owners of these steamers, as he considers his idea

A BRIGHT UN.

Princoe-street, August 26th.

ENORMOUS FAT OX.—Messrs. Pritchard and Williams sold by auction, yesterday, one of the largest stall-fed oxen that has been seen in Sydney for a long time past. It was bred on the farm of Mr. Charles Reynolds, of Toocal, Parramatta, and was recently purchased by Messrs. G. and E. Lee, of Maitland, for the sum of £40. It was forwarded to Sydney by those gentlemen with the view of reselling it at an advance. It was expected to fetch £50; this transaction over, has not been realised. Mr. Henry Bell, butcher, of Pitt-street, became the purchaser, yesterday, for the sum of £34 10s. It weighed alive, 2040 lbs.

to conceive of a more totally uncomfortable den than a crowded car on a hot and dusty day, and it is almost impossible to put men, and, also, women and children, into a more thoroughly wretched sewer than a full and tight railway carriage, heated up after the usual fashion on a wintry night. That thousands of people are compelled to endure this slow poisoning of body and temper year after year is a disgrace to the managers of our railways. It compromises their sagacity so deeply as it impaches their humanity, for every one of these evils might be remedied at a comparatively small cost, which the travellers themselves would be only too glad to pay. Most of the devices now known and occasionally adopted seem some important feature of comfort, but they are not applied, accomplish enough to make the journey less disagreeable, but do not make the carriage ting tolerable, especially on nights. The panorama of the whole subject is expressed in the following ventilation system: "The supply. Ventilation implies not only a passage of air, but also equally distributed content of heat. Whatever case of posture a seat, couch may furnish, or however genial a temperature may pervade a car, an atmosphere chemically or mechanically impure will invariably compromise rest and murder sleep. Simple windows, however suitably placed, are inadequate for the purpose. They are factors, for in nine cases out of ten a cloud of dust surrounds the car, and will enter it at any aperture if there is no governing current to prevent. But how inadequate are windows when any passenger may fill a whole car with sweat or cold, and obstruct the sacrifice the general comfort of the whole to his personal whim! The distribution of fresh warm air by common car stoves is still more abortive. To maintain the required average of warmth the region of the above-eye-head level, while the stratum of dust is produced by blasts from the windows, which threaten neighbours of the fiery furnace have opened its self-defence. And this is not the worst feature. The elevated stratum of breathing air is both full and hot, provided restlessness and headaches are not, or at least not so much as they would be if it were not capable of insuring the remedy, and the little goal their scientific adjustment might accomplish is invariably thwarted by the, perhaps, excusable selfishness of a few passengers. There are various modifications of windows—some of them on the one extreme, others on the other; but all of them, which, by a scientific arrangement of surfaces and openings create a slight outward current, and prevent the entrance of dust in bulk; and there are some side and top ventilators which act as pumps with good results. But what relation are these devices to the relief of the chest? Is it not rather the case, that the violent gusts of air must enter a carnerhouse, and with it dust, if any dust rises. Besides, this process of exhaustion is too slow to insure chemical purity. There must also be an inward current, and since this has to be cooled, and cooled by the same means by which it is cooled, and moistened by the same simple process—by passing it through spray or water. All this is well done by several kinds of ventilators, which some of our roads have used. With a few modifications it might be thoroughly done. If it is deemed impracticable to raise a summer heat in a car, it is not difficult to substitute a furnace for the summer water-bath. All this is feasible. But is an approximation to summer heat at all necessary or desirable? No feasible amount of ventilation in a stove-heated car will raise the average temperature of the atmosphere, will keep a car so warm as to allow tolerably cool, or their feet comfortably warm; but if the feet are well and fully protected by steam pipes, or by hot water, or

A DISCOVERY, which, if it fulfills the expectations of its inventor, is fraught with great consequences to the world of letters, has just been made public in Paris. The myra-type of M. Combarieu has been admitted to the Académie des Sciences, and, in consequence, is a marvellous invention, intended to effect an immense revolution in the art of printing. Hitherto the characters used in printing have been composed of a mixture of lead and alloy; these characters are made by one of their extreme softness, were they harder they could not be used, and they are made so quickly, that one man can make a galley of types in a few minutes, one by one, the best workman can scarcely produce 6000 of them in a day in the rough. They are afterwards to be finished and pass through several hands

M. Combarieu, by an ingenious machine, 10,000 types at one stroke. Each letter is then separated by a mechanical saw, which divides them with mathematical regularity and precision. The consequence of this invention, will be—production increased ten per cent.; exactitude and regularity, hitherto unobtainable; the use of harder metal, which will avoid the frequent renewal of the printing materials; reduction (by one-half) of the cost; an increase of printing, and an enormous diminution in the price of books. M. Combarieu announces, moreover, his intention of producing types in steel, the durability of which will be beyond calculation.—The Leader.

and firm of Thurlow, Dick, and Brown to continue as his partner.

The bill further stated that Thurlow went to England, and that shortly afterwards the bank account was removed by the other partners to another bank, and there placed to their joint account. That the partners neglected to remit the whole of the annual sum of £500, whereby Thurlow was prevented from returning to the colony at the time contemplated by the agreement. That in June, 1866, Thurlow received instructions to transact certain business in Holland on the part of the partners in the firm, and that he thereby was enabled to return to the colony at the time fixed for his return. That in January, 1867, the defendants advised a dissolution of the partnership of Thurlow, Dick, and Brown, and that the business would thereafter be carried on under the name of Dick and Brown. That in March, 1867, Dick went to England, and shortly after his arrival there Thurlow served him with a notice of his claim to be a partner in the firm of Thurlow, Dick, and Brown, which claim Dick and Brown refused to acknowledge. That in November, 1867, Brown having been previously served with a notice with that served on Dick. A more formal notice was afterwards served on Brown. The bill prayed that the action be continued in the name of the plaintiff, and for consequential relief for an injunction to restrain the defendants from preventing the plaintiff from exercising his rights as a partner, and from carrying on the business either alone or with any other person, except the plaintiff, from using the style of Dick and Brown, from circulating notices of the dissolution of the firm of Thurlow, Dick, and Brown, and from receiving or getting the money of that firm, and from further relief. The defendants put in their answers, admitting in general terms the facts stated in the bill, but alleging that the agreement had not ended to the partnership, either from the date of it, or from the 1st January, 1867. They further alleged that £500 was sent to Thurlow, and that he would have had the receipt of £1000 from the colony, and that the plaintiff was not entitled to the money. In September, 1868, the defendant Dick filed a cross-bill against

Thurlow and Brown, stating the articles of partnership, and the agreement of December, 1864, and that Thurlow had received the money, and that he had not remitted it to the colony, and that he had

erection of the pedestal on which is to be placed the bronze statue of the late Sir Robert Peel, for some years ago by a number of Glasgow gentlemen. The site of the monument is the north-west corner of George Square. The statue which is to be cast in bronze from a model by Mr. John Gibson, is nine feet in height, and represents the deceased statesman in the position of addressing the House of Commons with a scroll of paper in his hand. The pedestal will be 12 feet high, of finely dressed granite. It is expected the whole will be finished in a week or two at the farthest.—The Commonwealth, June 4th.

Farmers, Small Capitalists, and others, seeking his class land.

HUNTER and GOULBURN RIVERS.

200 Acres of Selected Agricultural LAND, immediately at the junction of the Hunter and Goulburn Rivers, adjoining or near the well known grates of Agriculture, Chant's Game Preserve, and others, and known as a valuable tract, containing 1000 Acres more or less, subdivided into Farms of from 25 Acres to 150 ACRES EACH, most of which have fringes the Hunter or Goulburn Rivers.

Title unquestionable.
Terms very liberal.

P. RICHARDSON has received instructions from the proprietor to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 29th August, at 11 o'clock, that parcel of land, containing by admeasurement 1000 acres, more or less, situate in the county of Kent, and bounded on the north by the Goulburn River, on the south by the Goulburn River, on the east by the Goulburn River, and on the west by the Goulburn River, and divided into Farms, containing from 25 to 150 acres each, fronting the Hunter and Goulburn Rivers, and the well-watered valuable block of fertile and favourably situated, offers unusual advantages to the cultivator.

Close proximity at the confluence of two great rivers makes it as it were a reservoir for the adjacent soils of the surrounding districts, and would prove any cultivation and highly productive.

That piece of land, suitable for capitalists and the inhabitants of Jerry's Plains, Singleton, Maria, Seabrook, and other populous districts, requiring the superior quality of the soil, and the use of the AGRICULTURAL LANDS, which have been put into the market solely to satisfy the demand in the neighbourhood and elsewhere for really good farms, and terms will be liberal, and the view of all the land and subdivision on view at the Rooms.
